Energie 21 (Energy 21)

A magazine about renewable and secondary energy sources

A specialized magazine Energie 21 (Alternative energy), published every two months, joins thematically close magazines Energie 21 and Alternative Energy. It brings theoretical and practical information about production and efficient use of energy from renewable and secondary sources – biomass, sun, earth, wind, water, waste and others. The current topics are energy distribution, energy self-sufficiency, safety and sustainable development of regions.

On the one hand, its readers are investors, managers of power plants, construction and technology suppliers; on the other, end users – companies, institutions, sole traders, farmers and property owners. The magazine is also regularly read by civil servants, residential services staff, research and academic staff and students of secondary schools and universities. It is distributed via subscription to 3,600 readers, 400 out of these are from Slovakia.
